Curriculum

The MBSC MiF maintains a uniquely adaptive design that facilitates training in finance for all students, regardless of whether they have previously pursued formal studies in the discipline. Whether a student has a background in science, technology, engineering, mathematics, or business, the Master in Finance takes students of all backgrounds with a substantial quantitative component, and instils in them the finance fundamentals, before delving into the advanced topics necessary for preparing them to assume financial leadership roles in organizations of all types.

Curricular Core:

FOUNDATIONS, FUNCTIONS
AND LEADERSHIP

The curricular core is comprised of 12 courses that represent three key areas of development:

- 1) Foundational knowledge necessary for the study of finance
- 2) Functional knowledge of various aspects of finance
- 3) The role and skills of a financial leader

The core is delivered with MBSC's signature emphasis on entrepreneurial thinking- developing a mindset that encourages innovation, adaptability, and problem-solving in senior leaders. It is designed to ensure that all students, no matter their background, have the foundational knowledge required for the further study of finance. The first part of the core therefore, Foundations, includes courses in quantitative methods, accounting, economics, and corporate finance.

The second set of classes, Functions, covers various key areas of finance, such as investment analysis, portfolio management, and derivatives. The third and final portion of the core is Leadership, which rounds out the foundational and functional courses with courses in strategy and leadership. Together, the curricular core prepares students for financial leadership roles as they enter various industries throughout Saudi Arabia and the world.

According to a recent report produced by the Misk Global Forum on Readiness for the Future of Work, "Companies are increasingly seeking workers with 21st-century skills including critical thinking, communication and collaboration, so that they can respond quickly to customer and marketplace needs."

The Distinctive Core in the MiF program equips students with these crucial skills.

Distinctive Core:

MBSC is distinguished in preparing its graduates to meet the challenges of the 21st-century workplace with the skills to navigate and manage the rapidly changing work environment.

CEOs and HR executives, regionally and globally, are increasingly reporting on the importance of personal effectiveness and communication skills as the most important characteristics they seek in their employees, and regret that the education of young graduates is typically deficient in these areas of development.

MBSC provides an educational experience and resources that emphasize the development of personal effectiveness skills through interactive practical application and continuous self-reflection focused on personal growth through an innovative multifaceted approach. The emphasis on personal effectiveness development is through required modules, digital learning platforms and a continuous encouragement for students to utilize these skills throughout the curriculum. At the same time, individual mentoring is provided as needed.

Personal Effectiveness:

The course aims to develop and enhance students' intra- and inter-personal skills necessary for the development of management competencies by requiring students to actively engage with peers in self-reflective processes that are essential for self-awareness. Continued growth and development in both personal development spheres are complementary and critical for the holistic growth of the individual for the development of self-awareness, emotional regulation, establishing and maintaining relationships, decision making, advancing a creative mindset, and evolving management competencies.

Professional Communication:

The course aims to provide students with professional communication skills that enables them to effectively and efficiently engage with their colleagues, teams, and executives. Students learn the fundamentals of using communication (written, verbal, and visual) to become positive contributors in their environment through persuasion, assertiveness, and empathetic professional styles of communication.

Integrated Financial Challenge (IFC)

The MBSC MiF Integrated Financial Challenge is a dynamic, six-month long course, applying knowledge acquired to real-world business problems. Combining theoretical knowledge and applied work, students will investigate and propose a solution to a real-world finance-related business problem. This will require calling upon the aggregated understanding of analytical, quantitative, adaptive, personal effectiveness and problem-solving skills acquired through the duration of the MiF program. Faculty, working closely with industry leaders from the private, public or social sectors, will identify and nominate a set of finance-related business problems. Working in teams of 5-8 students, each team will be assigned one such problem, and will apply their knowledge and skills to its resolution. Teams will be assessed periodically at different stages of the six-month course; they will be self-assessed by teammates, and evaluated by coaches, faculty and external industry leaders.
